

Appendix

First derivative and 95% confidence interval of trendlines generated using general additive models for each of the five most abundant seabirds nesting on Kaua'i. The first derivative of these trend lines indicates exactly which sections of each has a slope that is statistically different from zero, and thus indicative that counts per annum are decreasing (if below 0) or increasing (if above 0).

